

Bucks County Impressionist Art to Fit Your Own Unique Environment . . .

by Rhonda Garland
Owner, Silverman Gallery

There are so many parts of my role as owner of the Silverman Gallery that I enjoy: talking with visitors about the art and artists, helping clients select paintings, giving my artists the good news when something sells, etc., If I had to pick my favorite thing it would definitely be delivering art to someone's home or office and placing it in their unique setting.

Art that is admired while hanging in the gallery has an entirely different visual impact when seen in a home. In an effort to show as much work as possible for the ten artists we represent, the walls of the Silverman Gallery are a patchwork of Bucks County paintings and mosaics.

Realizing that most paintings purchased will become a focal point of a room is the reason we heartily encourage people to take artwork home and try it on approval.

Additionally, there are buyers who have limited space and growing collections.

The painting by Joseph Barrett shown above needed to hang in a very specific place in this historic Carversville farmhouse. It was a perfect fit as you can see!

This landscape by Desmond McRory sprang to life when hung in the foyer of this lovely Paoli home. The daylight in the adjacent window illuminates the sky and a bench was later custom made to anchor the painting in the room.
